Seen & Heard

James McKendrick

"Looking back to that day, I can clearly see what I did not then understand : that God's Holy Spirit was leading me step by step, convincing me of my need, convicting me of my sins, and pressing the awful and tremendous fact upon me- if I die as I am,I shall die

The cross is more than a mere doctrine. It is something that is already in practice. Do not think that the way to humility is some self-exerted effort to remind ourselves constantly never to be proud. We must be stricken again and again

Through the operation of the cross, we shall learn to depend upon the grace of God, not on our memory. Whether we remember it or not, the fact remains: He is accomplishing a work which is dependable and lasting. Formerly, the outward and the inward man were not able to join hands. But now the outward man waits meekly in fear and trembling before God, and is subsequently no longer in conflict with the inner man.
